

主旨: My views on hk population

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am writing to express my view on the populatuon policy.

If the local workforce is the main consideration of the population policy, I believe, boosting the local birth rate is the most appropriate and wise solution, though it takes a long time.

Having resources, and familiar with the local culture, local residents could spend the best, for any opportunities, to cultivate energetic youngsters that we needs for the society. A proper birth rate could guarantee local workforce and the government could cultivate different kinds of professionals according to the needs of the society.

To achieve that, enhancing the living environment of hk is the first, the most important and effective step. It could prevent the local talents leaving from hk and attract overseas talents to stay. On the contrary, maintaining workforce by immigrants may lead to the conflicts in cultures, job oppotunities, social welfare, etc. When the immigrants get older, the problem of aging population would emerge again.

Therefore, encouraging the local birth rate is the main idea I would like to emphasize on the long run of the population policy.

Yours faithfully,
Mr. Kwong Chi Ho
